4. Human Rights Risk Management Framework

(1) Risk Identification: Human Rights Impact Assessment

Samyang Packaging identifies key human rights risk factors in accordance with international human rights standards and its Human Rights Management Policy. The identification process includes:

- Analysis of domestic and international human rights reports and industry-specific risk data
- Conducting employee surveys and interviews to assess human rights awareness
- Reviewing complaints and reports received through grievance and ethics reporting systems
- Conducting human rights risk assessments and screenings at each workplace

Through these processes, potential human rights risks are identified internally and externally, and priorities are set based on severity and likelihood of occurrence.

(2) Risk Mitigation: Implementation and Monitoring

Based on the identified risks and their priority levels, Samyang Packaging implements mitigation and corrective measures through the following process:

- Analyze the nature, severity, scale, and remediability of the identified issues
- Develop and implement improvement plans as necessary
- Establish preventive measures to address potential adverse human rights impacts

(3) Monitoring Implementation

The company regularly monitors the effectiveness of post-implementation measures and takes additional action when necessary. The results of mitigation and improvement efforts are periodically reported to the ESG Committee and senior management to strengthen oversight and promote continuous improvement in human rights management.

5. Grievance Handling Process

- (1) All employees may report, either verbally or in writing, any discrimination or violation of rights guaranteed under this Human Rights Management Policy, international human rights standards, or applicable laws directly to the Grievance Handling Committee. External stakeholders — including business partners, customers, and community members — may also report actual or suspected violations through designated channels such as online platforms, email, or hotlines.

- (2) Upon receiving a grievance, the complainant is immediately protected from the alleged violator. The Grievance Handling Committee and the Labor-Management Council promptly review the case, investigate the facts, and conduct interviews or document reviews as necessary to develop an appropriate resolution. The results are promptly communicated to the complainant, and corrective actions along with follow-up monitoring are carried out to ensure proper resolution.
- (3) Samyang Packaging strictly protects the confidentiality of whistleblowers and ensures their anonymity to prevent any disadvantage or retaliation resulting from reporting.

6. Human Rights Management Education

The company conducts regular training programs to enhance employees' understanding and awareness of human rights.
